1. Open the                     software
2. Click
                                        select the folder that contains the spectrum file of choice, and click
3. Click on                          —two columns of raw data (wavelength and absorbance) will appear in the top left corner window
4. Right click in the            window and select            . In the            ,         , select
5. In the software menu bar, click            and type in a name for the text file in the            field, and select